

6072 pdf
Jannis, J.

The Greatest Discovery of Basilicata Italy

The destiny of the human race has been in the hands of secret societies for ages, who dominate us and continue to foretell and plan our futures.

We understand that their goals are not the ones we see manifest, rather excuses to obtain others; private hidden ones.

Acerenza, the 'forgotten land' is now proven to be one of the most important centers for secret society conspiracies in southern Italy. This town and several other towns in the region of Basilicata once known as 'Lucania' til 1300, were inhabited by many significant historical figures that played vital roles in these conspiracies.

As we've discovered, Acerenza turns out to be the main headquarters involving a good majority of them. Several towns in the province of Potenza were saturated by Masonic activities and practices. These connections have not yet been written in books nor realized by any human being till this research unfolded the elements and facts.

Recent discoveries prove that the birth of the secretive organization of the Templar Knights began in Acerenza by a Norman-Italian and not a Frenchmen the notable; Hugues de Payen.

In the region of Basilicata, one can witness clues left behind by some of the very first secret societies in history. This may wake up many of us to the coming of the third pre-meditated World War.

During the Magna Grecian period of 500 B.C. Pythagoras was opening his esoteric school in Metapontum located by the sea 37 miles from Acerenza where members had to be sworn in. Pythagoras aspired to create superior humans or demy-gods or half man\half god. Spiritual rituals were performed in hopes of arriving at this relevant spirit. Pythagoras also realized that knowledge was not enough and that one needed the adapted spirit of serenity to achieve this there was only one way; purification of the spirit. Only then would one receive the knowledge needed to become god-like.

Pythagorean days consisted of; chanting, meditation, planning, studying, exercise, and nourishment. The 'Pythagorean brotherhood' was one of the world's earliest unpriestly cooperative scientific societies. There was a revolt against the cult. Pythagoras and Masonic cult members were brutally slaughtered in Metaponto. Pythagoras was viewed by the people as the God Apollo, a god of prophecy, music and healing and his corpse had mystically disappeared. One like this is usually given a proper burial or plaque Maybe his body was confiscated and hidden in a sacred place, as many saint's bodies were could that place be Lucania?

It's no secret that the Normans had been conquering Italy since the beginning of the 11th century. They battled for power, territories, with the Papacy and Byzantines, the Arabs, the Longobardi's and other tribes who occupied lands in Italy.

The Romans conquered Acerenza in 318 B.C. and built a temple dedicated to the Roman God Hercules. It was build upon an antique temple once dedicated to "Heracles" (Son of Zeus) which existed before this, in the time of Pythagoras.

The Greatest Discovery of Basilicata Italy

The destiny of the human race has been in the hands of secret societies for ages, who dominate us and continue to foretell and plan our futures.

We understand that their goals are not the ones we see manifest, rather excuses to obtain others; private hidden ones.

Acerenza, the 'forgotten land' is now proven to be one of the most important centers for secret society conspiracies in southern Italy. This town and several other towns in the region of Basilicata once known as 'Lucania' till 1300, were inhabited by many significant historical figures that played vital roles in these conspiracies.

As we've discovered, Acerenza turns out to be the main headquarters involving a good majority of them. Several towns in the province of Potenza were saturated by Masonic activities and practices. These connections have not yet been written in books nor realized by any human being till this research unfolded the elements and facts.

Recent discoveries prove that the birth of the secretive organization of the Templar Knights began in Acerenza by a Norman-Italian and not a Frenchman the notable; Hugues de Payen.

In the region of Basilicata, one can witness clues left behind by some of the very first secret societies in history. This may wake up many of us to the coming of the third pre-meditated World War.

During the Magna Grecian period of 500 B.C. Pythagoras was opening his esoteric school in Metapontum located by the sea 37 miles from Acerenza where members had to be sworn in. Pythagoras aspired to create superior humans or demy-gods or half man\half god. Spiritual rituals were performed in hopes of arriving at this relevant spirit. Pythagoras also realized that knowledge was not enough and that one needed the adapted spirit of serenity to achieve this there was only one way; purification of the spirit. Only then would one receive the knowledge needed to become god-like.

Pythagorean days consisted of; chanting, meditation, planning, studying, exercise, and nourishment. The 'Pythagorean brotherhood' was one of the world's earliest unpriestly cooperative scientific societies. There was a revolt against the cult. Pythagoras and Masonic cult members were brutally slaughtered in Metaponto. Pythagoras was viewed by the people as the God Apollo, a god of prophecy, music and healing and his corpse had mystically disappeared. One like this is usually given a proper burial or plaque Maybe his body was confiscated and hidden in a sacred place, as many saint's bodies were could that place be Lucania?

It's no secret that the Normans had been conquering Italy since the beginning of the 11th century. They battled for power, territories, with the Papacy and Byzantines, the Arabs, the Longobardi's and other tribes who occupied lands in Italy.

The Romans conquered Acerenza in 318 B.C. and built a temple dedicated to the Roman God Hercules. It was build upon an antique temple once dedicated to "Heracles" (Son of Zeus) which existed before this, in the time of Pythagoras.

There's more. Inside the cathedral in the subterranean crypt, a black window leads to nowhere. to What is on the other side that was all walled up in the 16th century? Why does the metal detector go wild in one particular spot?

The cathedral's construction being organized by Arnould de Chiny followed many centuries after Pythagoras and his colleges were in Italy. Arnould steered the oldest and most powerful secret society; the Priory of Sion.

Maybe to the residents of Acerenza nothing seems to look out of sorts, but behind the curtains powerful orders flourished indeed.

It was all about power and control. The Papacy had power and control and so did the Normans. So, what could be better than for them to join forces?

Pope Urban II was rescued from the Emperor of Germany; Enrich IV. He was transported to Banzi, to a Benedictine Norman Monastery 20km from Acerenza escorted by Robert Guiscard's son Boemundus Hauteville and Arnould de Chiny.

Pope Urban II was a Catholic Pope. Together they had brilliantly strategized the entire battle of the Holy War during their six years stay in Banzi. It was a brutal unnecessary war that lasted almost two hundred years. Meanwhile, Banzi witnessed another incredible happening. The little rendezvous developed one of the oldest and most powerful secret societies in the world. The evidence is in the symbol of Acerenza; it's the symbol of the confraternity of the Priory of Sion. Could they have been the beginnings of the Priory?

Their goals are not the ones we see manifest, rather excuses to obtain the others, the goals they keep in secret.

The Holy War was an excuse as clues point in this direction. The Holy War was conspired between 1088 and 1095—and surprisingly the true target was not the Muslims, but the Roman Ruled Empire Constanopoli today known as Turkey. Their false claim to the promotion of this war was that civilians needed protection from the Mulism people, who really accepted them.

Their goal was to convert the second half of the empire of Constanopoli into the Roman Catholic faith thus to rule, and be the only true religion in the world.

Arnould's objective was to find the Arch of Alliance and bring it back to Acerenza. In this way, the Norman church would have become the most influential church in the world.

Many powerful events took place or were conjured up in Lucania, and never stated in History books; either because no one knew about them, or because they were never intended to be documented.

A NEW WORLD ORDER WAS IN THE MAKING

In 1117, a Norman-Italian Knight born in Forenza became leader of the Order of the Knights Templar; a powerful secret society proceeding the Priory of Sion. History states that Hugues de Payen was from France, but this information gathered throughout the years is no longer holding water. It's now Ugo de' Pagani an Italian who is revealed and proven his true identity and documents prove only this story. Ugo signed his name in various of documents, and they were found with this Italian spelling.

The history of the Templar Knights as we knew it started out as few as nine people, but grew into thousands in a very short time. The story made history, but had been miscalculated.

Today, secret societies are no different than that first powerful force born in Acerenza, in the year of 1117. Documents prove this.

Clues of the Templar's presence in Lucania range from numerous bas relief's portrayed in pagan figures to detailed frescoes wallpapering various churches, caves and crypts all around the province of Potenza.

We've seen Templar crosses of red, signs and symbols of the Holy Grail, outfits with white dots a signature of the master templar painter as we've discovered, who painted most of their frescoes.

Protection can be another word for control

Why bring up the Templars? Because they were the beginning of a series of secret societies, that still continue today and offer clues to the hidden stories buried to date. The finding of the Arch of Alliance, could be used in creating a New World Order.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE THAT HISTORY COULD BE CHANGED?

This entire Italian region of Basilicata is marked with clues leading directly back to the Templar Knights, but that's not all. We find a peculiar nature in Lucania.

Secret societies started to snowball into different groups just like the Pythagorean societies, but the Templars eventually disappeared out of sight after the massacre ordered by the Pope. Remaining were members who became the Antoniani's and eventually the Masons, who continued the mission to find the 'Arch of Alliance' that sent them to hunt down Ethiopia. In Scotland the Antoniani order transformed themselves into the Masons, and in Portugal into Knights of Christ.

*Times have changed, but secret societies have not.
They continue in their thirst for power.*

NOT A SINGLE WAR HAS BEEN COINCIDENTAL

Another look at the New World Order in the makings, obliges us to include General Pike, a member of the secret society "Illuminati," and a 33° Freemason later on. He wrote letters to Giuseppe Mazzini that make one's mouth drop. Mazzini was a revolutionist in Italy and received the exact details of the last two World Wars and of the third. A WWII against the Muslims which we see the beginnings of now.

These antique letters were written in 1871 and were not predictions; they were arranged plans. Today the actual letters are conserved in the British Museum in London.

A bit of background on the intentions of the Illuminati, shows us how we've arrived to the situation in which we find ourselves today. This order was formed in Bavaria in 1776, by Adam Weishaupt a man who planned to transform this organization into Freemasonry by using the secrecy of the Masonic lodges to recruit members from the Illuminati. His plan was to create a secret organization that would control the world behind the scenes to benefit humanity. This required the forming of a communist one-world government. In order to do this, he would have to create wars, abolish religion, and many people would have to die in the process as they are now.

The New World Order shall be carried out, thus the continuance in Iraq and Iran.

In 1784, a German linguist named Munter went to Acerenza. He belonged to the 'Illuminati' of Baviera and was sent on a secret mission to reorganize the Masonic lodge of the Orient in Naples, a lodge founded by the last grand maestro of the Templars, Jacque de Molais the first templar to die in Paris 1312. Jacque established four lodges: Edinburgh, Stockholm, Paris and the one in Naples.

The goal was to destroy the King and the Pope. Munter met with Joseph Glinni known as Ottoman Glinni by the Illuminati, who lived in Acerenza. He was accompanied by Mario Pagano, his friend and a follower of Ottoman Glinni. After the incident, Ottoman died mysteriously after several important documents and rows of book shelves were reduced to ashes.

Jackelin J. Jarvis